MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hospital physicians today studied X-rays of a madman who swallowed at least one spoon and maybe more while awaiting transfer to New York, where he is accused of slaughtering his brother-in-law's family.

Dade County jailers said the man, Mate (Mike) Ivanov, 37, had broken the bowl off a spoon and swallowed the 3½-inch handle. Physicians said X-rays showed at least one spoon in his stomach. They said they would wait a day or so to see if he would pass the spoon normally before deciding on surgery.

Ivanov was bound to a stretcher in the psychiatric ward of a hospital. Attendants described him as "uncommunicative, quiet."

"He hasn't said much since he arrived here," said one attendant. The FBI identified Ivanov as the man wanted in Mineola, N.Y., for the Nov. 25 bayonet massacre of five persons.

The victims were Peter Gregov, 39, his wife, 35, and their three sons; Peter Jr., 17, Ronald, 15, and Michael, 11. Even the family poodle was stabbed to death with wounds. A French bayonet found nearby was described as the murder weapon.

Ivanov was picked up by immigration authorities Dec. 5 on charges of illegal entry into the United States. He was found floating in a rowboat near Marathon in the Florida Keys.

A fingerprint check by the FBI disclosed his identity.

Records showed that Ivanov and his wife and four children lived with the Gregovs when they arrived in the United States from Trieste on the Yugoslavian border. Later, Ivanov and his wife had domestic difficulties and she and Gregov had Ivanov committed to a mental institution.

Hepatitis Worst Disease Now

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state health department said Thursday hepatitis has replaced polio as the yardstick health workers employ in determining community cleanliness.

Dr. William L. Bunch Jr., director of the department's communicable disease control division, said a steady decline in polio through vaccines while hepatitis incidents increased have led to the change.

"The rise in hepatitis now points to insanitary conditions in a community as previously indicated by polio," Dr. Bunch said.

The department reported that during the 48-week period since last Jan. 1, some 943 cases of hepatitis were found in Arkansas compared to 21 polio cases.

Last year, the department said, there were 209 cases of hepatitis and 31 cases of polio reported in Arkansas.

Says UN Not Out to Take Over Katanga

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today the United Nations is not out to conquer Katanga but only wants to create a situation in which the Congolese themselves can work out their own government.

At a news conference, Rusk denied the United States has a blueprint for the Congo up its sleeve. But he said America will continue to give strong help to the United Nations in its effort to stabilize the turbulent African land.

Turning to troubled Southeast Asia, Rusk accused the Reds of having stepped up a campaign of terror and violence aimed at taking over South Viet Nam.

He expressed hope that other countries will join the United States in aiding the embattled South Vietnamese government.

He made this remark in connection with publication today of a State Department "white paper" detailing Red activities against South Viet Nam.

As for neighboring Cuba, Rusk said Prime Minister Fidel Castro has saved the United States some trouble by his public admission that he is a Communist.

Rusk said Castro's announcement came as no surprise to the United States, which has known this for some time, but the statement from Castro's own lips saves Washington the task of proving it conclusively to others.

Castro has created a problem for the Communists, as shown by their quiet response to Castro's statement, Rusk added.

The U.S. foreign affairs leader met with newsmen for a half hour in his last scheduled news conference before departing for Paris Saturday night for a meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministers.

While there are some differences among the Allies on how to proceed toward a Berlin settlement, he said, the difference, which really counts is that between Moscow and the Western powers. The real key to a settlement is whether the Soviets will respect Western rights in Germany, he said.

Much of the news conference dealt with the troubled Congo, where secessionist leader Moïse Tshombe is accusing the United States of outrages and U.S. allies are in some cases reported less enthusiastic than this country in their support of the U.N. operation.

Rusk took pains to make plain that the United Nations does not seek to impose any particular political solution in the Congo.

He said the Congolese have a wide range of possible governments they could form, ranging from centralized to decentralized regimes.

But if Katanga is not peacefully integrated, he continued, this will leave the Congo open to anarchy and a Communist takeover.

"We hope," he said, "that the leaders of Katanga will recognize that their present path leads nowhere."

Building Loan to State College

THROUGH HOLE IN THE WALL — A diplomatic car passes into East Berlin through a hole in the wall as East German soldiers look on. The vanguard of a combat-ready battle group rolled into Berlin after a 110-mile trip across East Germany in defiance of Communist warnings against possible "dangerous consequences." VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The Air Force has launched its second successful Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile in eight days. The launching Thursday was by a Strategic Air Command crew.

Youths Say Americans Not Patriotic

NEW YORK (AP) — Three young conservatives today variously described the American college as a collection of "hot-house liberals," a "left-wing brain laundry" and lacking in patriotism.

The comments came from Scott Stanley, a student at the University of Kansas; Roger Claus, a 1961 graduate of the University of Wisconsin; and William S. P. Colter, national organization director of Young Americans for Freedom.

They were made in remarks prepared for the National Association of Manufacturers 66th annual congress of American industry.

Stanley told the businessmen they were not active enough in fighting through the colleges to save the free enterprise system.

"The fact is, gentlemen, that you are being duped into financing your own demise. American colleges and universities are fast becoming a collection of electric hot-house liberals bent not upon education but upon indoctrination," Stanley said.

Urging industrialists to "get in the battle," Stanley continued: "What text is being used in your schools? How many of you know? How many of you care? How long since you sat down with your sons or daughters — and talked to them seriously about our system?"

"Young conservatives—through their conservative clubs—are now daring to say 'No.' You can help. Stop financing your enemies, and help us," he said.

Claus, who took part in the creation of "Insight and Outlook," a magazine of the Wisconsin Conservative Club, noted the increase of conservative college publications.

This increase, he said, "demonstrates that we are not merely reacting to our newly discovered presence in a left-wing brain laundry but are eager to explore the richness of the conservative philosophy and, having once explored it, pass it along to our heretofore indoctrinated fellow collegians."

Declaring that the American educational system has failed in teaching patriotism, Colter said it produces more "extreme leftist thinkers than any other nation on earth, save Russia."

Colter said most of the active, vocal students in America "are avowedly in defiance of precept, tradition, morality and that old-fashioned outmoded concept called patriotism."

Non Farm Jobs Reach a High

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state Employment Security Division announced today that non-agricultural job placements in November reached a nine-year high.

The division placed 8,463 workers last month. This was an increase of 50.1 per cent over the 5,638 placements in November, 1952, when 10,776 persons were placed during the Korean war boom.

No Man Is an Island Unto Himself—You Can Bet There Is a Record on You Somewhere

By MARY ANITA LASETER

No man is an island unto himself.

How familiar are these words. We hear them so often, and in this day of a shrinking globe they are more truthful than ever. Isolationism is an impossibility for a nation or an individual.

Life is easier when you are backed up by your friends. You have more confidence and are better able, as a whole to face what lies ahead. For that reason, no one really wants to be an "island." Even people who disappear, intentionally, always reappear in the guise of a new personality with a new name and in a new location. In that way they are able to make new friends in a new life.

However, all that is easier said than done.

For one thing, there is a record on you somewhere. Your birth is registered, and so are your marriage, your voting, your payment of taxes and your ownership of house and car. If you have ever worked for the government or served in the armed forces, your record is even more complete.

You don't have to do anything wrong for your past to catch up with you, either. Have you ever had the strange but pleasant experience of suddenly meeting someone you haven't seen in a long time? Then, you know what we mean. "It's a small world," we usually exclaim.

That's because it is. And it is growing steadily smaller.

If the world is growing smaller, and we know the population is getting larger, then things must be getting crowded for us in the human race. We have adopted the word "crowd" for our personal circle of friends, perhaps for a better reason than we realize.

During the Christmas shopping season we are especially conscious of crowds. Though most of us complain about them, crowds of people are a joy to come and a secret pleasure to many more.

It is ironic, however, that a lonely person can remain alone even in a crowd.

If we are in a crowd these days, physically, there is nothing strange about our crowded mental condition. There is a difference in minds that are crowded with activities, clouded with worries, or cluttered with unimportant trivialities. To that end, a crowded mind is most desirable, provided it doesn't lead directly to a social rut or bogs you down intellectually.

Since in this crowded life, everything we do today will contribute to what we are tomorrow, the future is limitless only for those who think FOR themselves and OF others.

Rules Urban Group Eligible to Serve

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Attorney General's office ruled today that seven members of the Harrison Urban Renewal Commission are eligible to serve although they hold other elective or appointive offices.

An opinion to Harrison City Attorney Bill F. Doshier said a constitutional prohibition against dual office-holding applies only to state offices.

Doshier was one of the Urban Renewal Commissioners involved. Others were Roy Baker Jr., Rabio Rhodes, E. J. Wasson, Bill Boush, Roger Collier and Director Donald Roney.

Needs Someone to Help Out

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Albert Warnhoff spent most of his life playing Santa's helper and now he needs someone to follow in his footsteps.

Warnhoff, 72, a carpenter and lumberman, spent his last 50 years building more than 45,000 toys and sending them to boys and girls in hospitals and orphanages all over the world.

"Of the many honors I have received," he said, "the one I like best was to see the sparkle in a sick child's eyes when I gave him a toy. I feel more happy than if I had piled up a lot of money and been a big shot."

But Santa's helper is in an Ann Arbor Hospital with lung cancer. He made only 500 toys this year. They'll be delivered to children in hospitals in the area next week.

Warnhoff retired when he turned 66 and devoted his full time to his workshop. He turned out angels, eridans, benches, rocking horses, boats, dogs that wiggle their tails—all manner of toys.

But, he says, he hasn't been able to find anyone to take over. "I'm sorry about it. There are going to be an awful lot of children without toys this year."

Adults Call on Santa for Presents

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati's Christmas Santas see some adults in their laps these days asking for Christmas treasures.

"How about a mink or a Cadillac, Santa?" said one woman Thursday as she perched on his knee, her cheek against his.

Santa, whose real name is George Ader, gave the woman an extra-heavy "ho-ho," and a few extra hugs, and after she left, said:

"Let's face it, I don't mind the girls. But those men. Some of them weigh a ton."

The change in the ages of Santa's visitors came because some of the downtown department stores rigged up cameras to take souvenir pictures of youngsters talking with Santa.

Wilbur Timme, an alternate Santa, said: "I wish parents wouldn't scare children by using Santa as a threat. They tell them Santa won't like them if they do this or that."

"Then they wonder why a youngster screams with fright when he or she is brought before me."

Ader said one little girl gave him a chuckle. She said her mother had asked her to relay an urgent request to Santa.

"What does Mommy want?" asked Santa.

"Peace and quiet," said the girl.

Special Election

WARREN, Ark. (AP) — A Special election on a proposed two mill tax increase to finance construction of a 60-bed nursing home has been set in Bradley County for Jan. 2. The millage increase would support a $180,000 bond issue to finance the home.

Guardsmen, Reserves May Soon Be Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army Reservists and National Guardsmen can be returned to civilian life as soon as regular units are created to take their places, Pentagon officials said today.

The officials made clear the Pentagon did not have a firm schedule for releasing the 119,500 Guardsmen and Reservists mustered into the Army last October.

Next month, training centers will start producing the first substantial manpower reinforcements for the Army resulting from the increased draft calls that began in August. The Army figures it takes a minimum of five months to train a new man to carry a full load as a soldier.

The increased flow of trained draftees does not mean called-up Reservists and Guardsmen can be released at the same time, officials stressed.

They said there are other key factors such as the rate of enlistments and, perhaps most important, the world situation.

"The Berlin crisis hasn't changed enough to warrant sending the Guardsmen and Reservists home," one official said.

The Army hopes to release all the Guardsmen and Reservists from active service by next July, but no decision has been made on when to start the process.

For one thing, the Army feels they should undergo at least five months of training. Most of them have been in uniform less than two months.

President Kennedy said 10 days ago: "It is our hope to get these men out before their 12-month period." Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr. followed this by saying, "We do intend to try to beat" the year limit, depending on the way the international situation develops.

Suggestions have arisen that a rash of complaints from some of the recalled Guardsmen and Reservists might prompt the Kennedy administration to consider hurrying their release, particularly since 1962 is a congressional election year.

One top official said there has been no suggestion from the White House or any other government quarter that "any military compromise should be made to ward off criticism."

Communists Enter Plea of Innocence

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Communist party of the United States pleaded innocent today to a charge of failing to register as an agent of the Soviet Union.

The plea was entered before Chief Judge Matthew F. McGuire in U.S. District Court by Washington attorney Joseph Forer.

The lawyer told the judge the party would waive reading of all of the 12-count indictment handed down by a District of Columbia grand jury last Friday.

The judge set a trial date of Feb. 1, allowing attorneys for the party and for the government the interval for filing pretrial motions.

On hand as a plea was entered was Gus Hall, general secretary of the Communist party in this country.

The indictment was served on Hall, as top officer of the party, in New York last Saturday. However, today he declined to say just exactly what his status in relation to the party.

He said with a smile, "You can refer to me just as dear old Gus Hall."

Nevertheless, Hall did release a statement charging that the Internal Security Act, which the party is charged with violating, "robs the people, the voters, of the right of political choice in these United States."

The indictment is against the party itself. It was returned one day after the passage of the legal deadline for registration by party officers. Any action against the officers themselves is yet to be taken.

There is still another deadline—Dec. 30—for registration by individual party members in case of the failure of the party, and of the officers, to register as required.

The maximum penalty under the charges against the party is a $10,000 fine for each day of failure to register, identify its officers and give the government details of its financial operations.

The same penalty, plus five years in prison, is provided for each day of violation by an individual.

Deer Hit Car, Claim Turned Down

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state Claims Commission ruled Thursday that a motorist whose car was damaged by a deer, and a football fan injured while attending a game at Fayetteville were not entitled to recover from the state.

John P. Selig of Stuttgart had asked for $100 as a result of a collision with a deer on State Highway 11, Robert P. Lemart of Tulsa, Okla., asked for $11 as expenses he incurred when he gashed his forehead on a ramp during the Arkansas-Tulsa game Sept. 30.

Denies Rift in Arkansas GOP Ranks

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Republican National Committeeman Winthrop Rockefeller has denied reports of a rift between him and Henry M. Britt of Hot Springs and declared that a disagreement among Washington County Republicans is healthy for the party.

Rockefeller and Britt, who was the GOP gubernatorial candidate last year, spoke to about 300 persons at an open meeting here Thursday night.

Replying to a reporter's questions before the meeting, Rockefeller said there is no friction between him and Britt and that they "see eye to eye" on bringing a two-party system to Arkansas.

Rockefeller was asked for his views on the situation in Washington County, state Republican stronghold, in which a split has been reported between the Federation of Washington County Republican Clubs and the Washington County Republican Club of Fayetteville.

"There are spontaneous groups there involved in various activities," he said. "This tends to produce some disagreement. This is good in my opinion," Rockefeller said.

The federation bought two advertisements in Wednesday's Northwest Arkansas Times of Fayetteville. One full-page ad introduced the federation's officers while the other, on the opposite page, denied any connection between the federation and the Fayetteville GOP unit.

Both ads were signed by E. A. Maestri of Springdale, secretary for the Washington County Republican Central Committee.

Washington was the only county which went for Britt in the 1960 general election. E. M. Wheat, who heads the Washington County Republican Club of Fayetteville, said his group was organized after an October visit by Rockefeller to the city.

During that visit, Rockefeller kicked off a statewide campaign which he said is aimed at bringing the Republican Party to prominence in the state.

At the Thursday night meeting, Rockefeller and Britt said the progress of the campaign to bring a two-party system to the state exceeded all their expectations.

"It is becoming increasingly respectable to be a Republican in Arkansas," Rockefeller said.

He added that the GOP is aiming for status of "a strong minority party in 1962, and a majority party in 1964."

The drive, he reiterated, is aimed at young people, old people, women, and disgruntled Democrats.

Rockefeller cited various recent election irregularities in the state and indicated that a two-party system would cure some of these ills.

He said two publications, "Southern Republican" and "Arkansas Republican Roundup" are being used to increase communications among Republicans in the state.

Truck Group Names Officers

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Harry King of Pine Bluff, was elected president of the Arkansas Bus and Truck Association Inc., today at its 29th annual convention here.

He is president of Red Line Transfer and Storage. King succeeds P. O. McConnell of Little Rock, who assumes the position of vice president of the Oil Field and Heavy Haulers Conference of the association, and will serve as a member of the Executive Council.

Charges Dropped

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — The daughters of a woman killed in a traffic accident in which Hot Springs Police Chief Milford Sanders was involved have asked that charges against Sanders be dropped. Mrs. Jewel Louis Beth was killed November, 1960. The daughters said prosecution of the charge would only revive unpleasant memories.

Fifteen Are Killed In Big Hospital Fire

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Fire burst out of a ninth floor trash chute at Hartford Hospital Friday, flashed down a corridor with blowtorch fury and killed 15 persons.

More than 100 other persons were trapped in hospital rooms as the fire transformed once gleaming corridors into a mass of charred debris.

Six patients, five visitors and four hospital staff members were among the dead. Two of the visitors had been to see their ill husbands. There were 793 patients in the hospital at the time.

An almost immediate investigation and hearing put witness after witness — some of them still disheveled and soot-marked — before fire officials in an effort to pinpoint the cause.

"The cause was not clear. Perhaps a lighted cigarette, said one hospital official. Perhaps some kind of escaped gas, said another. The formal investigation session lasted for six hours and was recessed until today.

One doctor said flames raced along the ceiling. Another said a billow of flame dropped down from the ceiling "like a blow torch."

Thick smoke and a muffled explosion accompanied the blast of flame that spouted from the trash chute at the ninth floor.

Patients screamed for help from their windows. Rescuers fought through smoke and fire as they carried helpless patients to safety down stairs or by the few elevators still working.

Nurses remained with their patients to prevent panic despite choking smoke and approaching flames. They ran through corridors, slamming doors shut as a safety measure until they were forced to seek refuge in rooms.

Rescuers evacuated all patients from the eighth floor up in the 10-million, 13-story hospital that was built 13 years ago and was regarded as almost fireproof.

Firemen tried to reach trapped patients on the ninth floor with extension ladders. But most of the ladders went only as high as the eighth floor.

Some patients were carried to safety while plasma bottles still were attached to their arms.

One of the hospital staff members, 33-year-old Dr. Norman Hendelstein, perished in the flames as he tried to close a door at the end of a corridor to prevent the spread of the fire.

Andrew Agogliati, 53, of Framingham, Mass., one of four patients in a ninth floor room, heard a shout: "Get the patients out!" He got out of bed—"Although I'm not supposed to"—and saw flames and smoke. Visitors in the room used blankets and sheets to seal cracks around the door to keep smoke out.

"We all opened the windows and the smoke went out," he said. "So we just stayed there and tried not to panic."

Louis Daly was one of the nurses who closed doors and windows in patients' rooms. She eventually was forced into a room with 10 others, including nurses, patients, visitors and employees.

"By the time we closed the door," she said, "the room was filled with smoke. We had to open windows in order to get some air because it was just black in there. We put wet towels over our nose and mouth so we could filter the smoke and breathe. For a brief moment I thought this was curtains."

Red Nations New Colonial Masters

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today, 20 years after the United States got into World War II, optimists like to think this country is winning the third world war, the cold one. Plenty disagree.

American self-examination increases—as the years of struggle with communism stretch out with no end in sight—but always from a single starting point: How did communism, which could claim only 170 million people in Russia 20 years ago, manage to gather in one billion now extending from Eastern Europe, through Russia and into Red China and Southeast Asia?

There is no single and no easy answer. Nor is there one to many other questions about this war which is deadly without shooting. For instance: How it started or how it could have been stopped? In some cases communism was a response to wretched conditions, in some to intrigue, treachery, and military power. It is questionable any single action or series of actions could have choked it off.

Communism is more than just a political or economic system. It is a challenging idea and, like capitalism, almost inevitably would have had to find some way to run its course.

Discontented men, perhaps for centuries, would have discussed it and perhaps tried it again if tomorrow it were crushed by an outside force instead of evolving into something quite different under its own power.

Capitalistic and communistic dogmatists tend to think of their pet beliefs in absolute terms as if they were unchanging.

Perhaps nearer the truth is the thought capitalism or communism, if tomorrow it ruled the world without opposition, would in time evolve into something unrecognizable today.

And for a simple reason: The history of man is evolutionary and the one predictable thread running through it is that there will be change, subtle or sudden, because of new ideas, new ambitions, or new conditions.

From the moment communism emerged in Russia 44 years ago the most realistic reaction to it might have been not how to top it but how to channel it in a direction more reasonable for the West to live with.

That is exactly what the Western powers are trying to do today. No one today in a responsible position is talking of destroying communism. The emphasis is on how to get it to live as a good neighbor.

Books have been written on how the great chance to overwhelm communism was lost at Yalta, or after the war when this country demobilized too fast.

The handwringing could go further back: To American isolation between the two world wars which helped make Hitler possible and, as a result after his destruction, made communist expansion possible.

But the isolationism was only evidence that this country, which emerged as the world leader after World War I, was too unprepared, too unimaginative and too unsophisticated for its role.

The same thing could have been said of it again after World War II when, once more it emerged as world leader and, failing to understand its problems and responsibilities, demobilized too fast.

But this is an endless story. The success of communism today could be blamed on the failure of the capitalistic West to unite and crush the Bolshevik takeover in Russia in 1917.

Beyond that, too, was the failure of the West to try to compel the czar to establish for his people conditions which would have made communism unthinkable.

But the West, except for the United States, was made up of colonial powers who were in no position to preach good treatment of backward people. The West had to learn the hard way and give up its colonies.

And now, by one of the great ironies of history, Communist Russia and Red China, proclaiming their concern for mankind, have become the new colonial masters. They too, will have to learn the hard way.

U.S. Support Backs a New Congo Plan

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Bolstered by U.S. support, Acting Secretary-General U. Thant today sought wider approval for his sweeping new plan to bring the breakaway Congo province of Katanga under United Nations control.

U.N. sources said Thant would submit the plan to his Congo advisory committee before making it public.

Thant disclosed earlier that the plan aims at carrying out U.N. resolutions on the Congo, including the Security Council's directive of Nov. 24 authorizing him to use force if necessary to expel from Katanga the estimated 200 foreign mercenaries serving with President Moise Tshombe's army and air force.

Thant outlined the plan Wednesday night in a 50-minute briefing at U.N. headquarters with Adlai E. Stevenson, the chief U.S. delegate to the U.N.; G. Mennen Williams, assistant secretary of state for African affairs; and Edmund A. Gullion, U.S. ambassador to the Congo.

"The United States is very pleased with the plan of the secretary-general to bring Katanga under control," Stevenson said.

A U.S. spokesman said the plan included use of force to end the fighting in Katanga and a blueprint of action designed to restore peace throughout the Congo.

The U.S. airlift to Elisabethville was suddenly suspended today when Katangan troops fired small arms at a Globemaster as it came in over Tshombe's presidential villa for a landing at the Elisabethville airport. Several bullets penetrated the fuselage but caused no serious damage. A report from Leopoldville, the Congo capital, said the U.S. government had agreed to the airlift on condition that full protective cover could be supplied, and Air Force commanders in the Congo were consulting with Washington to determine whether the airlift should continue.

Cables from Sture Linner, chief U.N. representative in the Congo, kept Thant abreast of the military action in Katanga. A U.N. spokesman said Linner's reports indicated the U.N. operation was going well.

Taking No Chance on Atom Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials are taking no chances on Sunday's Project Plowshare underground nuclear explosion, although they don't think anything can go wrong.

The Federal Aviation Agency said Thursday that all low-altitude plane travel will be banned for eight hours over the New Mexico desert test site.

It also advised all planes within 230 miles of the test site, near Carlsbad, N.M., to keep their radios on "for information on possible additional areas of potential hazard which might be created by some totally unexpected phenomenon or operational requirement."

The FAA said it does not expect the blast to break the surface, but just in case it banned all flights up to 12,000 feet after 8 a.m. (MST) Sunday in a 25-mile radius from the blast site.

Plowshare is the first known nuclear explosion devoted entirely to testing peaceful uses of the atom. The AEC dug a 1,200-foot hole straight down into salt deposits at the cost of $1 million. Branching off from this is a 1,116-foot horizontal tunnel with a chamber at the end.

Woman Booked for Murder, Arson

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Mrs. Rosie Bell Byrd, 51, of North Little Rock, was being booked on charges of arson and murder by police as a result of a fire which killed an elderly man here Wednesday night.

Henry Wallace, 72, was burned fatally when fire damaged a frame apartment building where both he and Mrs. Byrd and her husband lived.

Mrs. Byrd is scheduled for a preliminary hearing in North Little Rock Municipal Court next Tuesday.

Firemen said their investigation indicated the fire started in the Byrd apartment. Investigators believe Mrs. Byrd set a window shade afire, possibly accidentally.

Mrs. Byrd's husband, John, was held for a time for questioning. No major charge was placed against him.

Light for Amish
LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — For the first time ever, the Amish people are having to put electric lights on their old-fashioned buggies. A new state law requires it. Most of the Amish heretofore have relied on red glass reflectors.

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: My husband, a coin collector, leaves me home weekends while he looks for old coins. In a fit of pique because he refused to take me along, I joined a group of married ladies who go to dances. These affairs are as harmless as a child's cambric tea party. But to hear my husband talk, you'd think we were Jezebels.

I've not gone to one of these affairs for two months but he keeps on harping about them. The other night, he ripped off his wedding ring and shouted we were through because the whole town was talking about me. I don't believe that, but if people are, it's because he goes around telling them I'm a no-good.

He says I would never have gone dancing if I had loved him, which is not so. I do love him. The other night I begged him to give me the chance to prove I can be the kind of wife he wants—which is an Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire who stays home to mind the children and keeps house. Yet, he still goes out alone evenings, where, heaven only knows!

He won't even take me to visit his folks, of whom I'm very fond. I've never done anything to break our marriage vows and don't believe I should be treated like a wanton woman. How can I prove to him that I've learned my lesson? —Heartbroken Wife

Dear Heartbroken: Don't you let that husband of yours bully you. He's acting like an emotionally disturbed adolescent because his ego has been bent. Sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. Tell him to get busy and go dancing too—with you!

Why should you be stuck at home while he gallivants? Give him this message from me, "Those days are over, Mister. Marriage is a partnership, not a prison. Practice the Golden Rule at home. If your wife stepped out, it's your fault. And she's a ninny if she knuckles under."

Dear Helen: My daughter has given birth to two children and, on my advice, didn't send out an announcement either time. I felt that such an announcement would be a bid for a gift. It seemed to me that our true friends would give presents which really meant something because they were prompted by sincerity of purpose.

Now, these same friends' daughters have all had babies and are sending out birth announcements. Should I send gifts when they sent none to my daughter? Slighted

Dear Slighted: You are oversensitive. A birth announcement is simply a conventional shortcut for a busy mother who hasn't time to write all her friends the good news. It is no way obligates the recipient. However, if you are a friend, it would be gracious to send a small gift. But don't blame those who didn't send gifts to your daughter and her babies.

Dear Helen: I love a certain girl who returns my love. We have been going steady two and a half years against her mother's wishes. Now, the mother has issued an ultimatum; either we stop seeing each other (steady) or the daughter will be put in a home. Our love means so much to us. I only want the best for my girl. Her mother thinks her too young. We are both 18. What can we do? —Broken-Hearted

The decision lies with your girl. Dear Broken-Hearted: Legally, being 18, she is of age and her mother couldn't put her in a home if she tried. But for everybody's peace of mind, why not get engaged, instead of just going steady? A girl who goes steady

U. S. Planes Resume Airlifts

By JOHN LATZ

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP) — U.S. transports resumed the airlift of men and supplies today to U.N. troops battling stubbornly resisting Katanga forces.

As the fighting went into its fourth day, Katanga President Moise Tshombe charged that "cowardly and decadent" Americans had "bombed schools, a church and hospital and residential areas, killing women and children. Tshombe, back in Elisabethville to direct his forces, declared Americans "send to the Congo their dollars, their planes and their diplomats — everything except their soldiers."

No U.S. planes have been engaged in combat duties in Katanga, but Tshombe previously had attributed attacks by Swedish and Indian jet fighters on Katanga airfields to American planes.

In the fighting, the Leopold Hospital for Africans was hit by 50 mortar shells during a night-long barrage, but none of the 700 patients was seriously injured.

Nurses and doctors said the shells came from a Swedish U.N. troop camp.

U.N. officials said the U.N. mortar fire was aimed at Camp Tshombe—a Katanga installation only 800 yards from the hospital.

In London, in response to U.N. requests, the British government announced it would furnish 1,000-pound bombs for use by Indian jet fighters for defensive purposes in Katanga. The bombs may be used only against Katanga airfields, the British said.

The United States had six Globemasters and fourteen Hercules transports on hand in the Congo for the airlift that was temporarily suspended when one Globemaster was hit by ground

"campaign oratory" by Wendell Wilkie—but he also went far beyond. Repeatedly, almost constantly, he talked of the ideal president.

Few men ever pursued the presidency so openly and persistently. None ever entered the White House with a clearer concept of what the presidency should be, or with a firmer vision of the president he wanted to become.

HOURS TO KILL

BY DONALD CRISP

Chapter XXIV

Margaret's mind, taking cover informed her that this explained the lack of high-heeled shoes. As a nurse, on her feet a good deal, Isabel Glidden Foale had been accustomed to relaxing in flats. But then why hadn't she taken any of them abroad with her? Had she bought a whole new wardrobe of shoes?

The cover fled. Mrs. Foale—impossible to think of her as Miss Glidden after all this time—had been Wilma Trumbull's day nurse, had discovered her legatee, had communicated this to Philip. It could only have been of interest to him because he was half-engaged to Margaret at the time—had he sought her out at all because, through Mrs. Foale, he knew of the Trumbull connection and hoped for the best?

In any case, as the capable nurse Mrs. Powers had said she was, Mrs. Foale had probably had a fairly accurate idea of her patient's life expectancy. Philip had had a safe period of time in which to woo and win Cornelia, to be almost at the altar when the astounding news came.

Very well; where did that bring her? Miss Glidden had become Mrs. Foale. Philip had become Cornelia's husband. Hadley Foale had died, also predictably to a nurse who had been on night duty in the hospital where he was a patient.

That left—didn't it?—Cornelia. Odd man out.

Not necessarily, thought Margaret, rubbing her temples to try and smooth panic away: the evidence in the house was anything but that of collusion. Whatever their relationship, Mrs. Foale hadn't trusted Philip. The concealed snapshot of him, and the letter in the piano, were a wary guard against Philip's defection. Well, she would know how swayed Philip was where money was concerned, how smoothly he could get himself out from under. She could, as denser people often did, not apply the lesson to her own case.

If anything happened to Cornelia, Philip would inherit, and Mrs. Foale would certainly want a share. She would have foreseen the probability of Philip's coolly denying anything to do with her—his contacts with her in Connecticut would undoubtedly have been careful—and against that she had stored her weapons. The snapshot of Philip, the letter, possibly other things.

Margaret, in her scouring of the grounds for material with which to speed the burning of the blood-stained rag, had undoubtedly fire as it came in for a landing at Elisabethville.

The first planes to take off from Leopoldville at dawn today, as the airlift resumed carried 200 Irish troops. Malayan armored cars were being bought in on some of the nine flights planned for the day.

As Gen. Sean McKeown, the Irish commander of U.N. forces, flew here from Leopoldville for a firsthand survey of the situation U.N. officials acknowledged that the Katangans seemed to be holding their own against the smaller but better equipped U.N. force.

Katangans seemed to be increasing their mortar and sniping fire on U.N. positions on the outskirts, particularly the U.N. headquarters and its nearby Gurkha camp.

Tshombe returned during the night from his private visit to Paris to take up personal direction of the fight. He flew to neighboring Northern Rhodesia and drove from there to Elisabethville with a small escort of soldiers.

At what she was thinking she put her hands to her cheeks, frowning and hard. Reason as she might, Cornelia was not X or Y in a given problem. She was Margaret's sister, flesh and blood, naive for all her efficiency, and she was away somewhere with Philip. When Margaret's mind glossed over the phrase "if anything happened to Cornelia" she knew it was because she was afraid to face the meaning of the words: Cornelia's sudden death.

Call Jerome Kincaid? He was a man who knew what to do about all kinds of things; that was evident in his competent face, his eyes that could go so soft. She had wishfully accepted him as an old school acquaintance, because she liked him; underneath, in this raw moment, she knew that she had never believed it.

He knew something about Mr. Foale, and just as certainly he was interested in Cornelia's and Philip's whereabouts. But on whose behalf was he acting? There was—and shockingly she had forgotten him—Julio Garcia, dead by such painful degrees. Even if it were a private vendetta, nothing to do with his having been in this curiously sinister house in the past, there was still her own part in it. "They'll call tonight," she told herself. But they did not call.

At nine o'clock the next morning with Hilary occupied over her breakfast and the house eerily dark with coming thunder, she called the telephone number she had found in Cornelia's bedside table drawer.

"Breslin Laboratories. . . Hello? Breslin Laboratories."

"Do you—I have a capsule that I'd like analyzed, do you do that?"

The voice told her kindly and a little patronizingly that they did not; they served the hospitals in the area. Undoubtedly her own doctor could arrange . . .

Was this the answer Cornelia had gotten, or had she ever called at all? "Cornelia had to change her medicine . . . she said it made her sicker."

Intestinal flu might do that, but at one point Cornelia hadn't thought so. She had gone as far as looking up the number of the laboratory, and saying one of the capsules, and then something had happened that changed her mind.

Bond Issue Okay by the PSC

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Southwestern States Telephone Co. of Brownwood, Tex., got Arkansas Public Service Commission approval today on a proposal to sell $3.5 million worth of first mortgage bonds.

The company said the money would be used in part to pay for system improvements already made and partly to help finance its $9,500,000 building program for 1962. The company plans to spend $1,240,000 in Arkansas next year, operating in Arkansas, serving about 20 telephone exchanges in the state.

Says Nation Now Thinks Conservative

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Richard Wagner of Chicago, "president" of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said Wednesday he feels the country is returning to conservative thinking and common sense.

Wagner, here to meet privately with the Little Rock businessmen urged the government to remove itself from most of the services it now offers.

His primary target was the area redevelopment fields.

Wagner said such areas show economic justification for development, such development would come naturally from private sources.

He said he did not object to spending in the field of defense and space exploration.

"I don't think anybody objects to spending for these purposes," he said.

Regarding the return to conservatism, Wagner, who has traveled to some 60 cities since becoming head of the chamber, said conservatism is more evident in the south than in any other part of the country.

Demonstration With Sandwiches

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Two instructors from the federal Food and Drug Administration contained the materials for ham sandwiches with mustard gas Wednesday and then several hours later served the sandwiches to their students.

The food had been decontaminated in the meantime, and the students ate the sandwiches without harm.

Paul Dudley to Play in Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ark. (AP) - Paul Dudley, Arkansas' hard-running night halfback has been selected to play for the 25-man South team in the 13th annual Senior Bowl football game here Jan. 6.

The 6-foot, 182-pound speedster will go to Mobile after competing in the Sugar Bowl against Alabama. He has been drafted by the New York Giants.

All-America tackle Billy Neighbors of Alabama and end Bill Miller of Miami Fla., are among the top selections on the South team.

Sponsors of the All-Star game said the North squad will be completed within a few days. Coaches will be two of the top National Football League coaches. They will be named after the NFL's Eastern division race is decided.

Twenty-two of the 25 Southerners will come to Mobile after playing in other bowl or all-star games prior to the Senior Bowl. They represent 17 colleges throughout the South and Southwest, with 11 from the Southern Conference.

Signal callers for the south are Mike Cotton, who will direct Texas in the Cotton Bowl; Don Fuell of Mississippi Southern; and Billy Gantry of The Citadel.

The players turn pro in the Senior Bowl game. Each member of the winning team receives $500 and each losing squadsmen $500.

One of the south ends, second-Cleveland Browns in the NFL team All America Gary Collins of Maryland, was No. 1 choice of the League.

Other first-round choices included back Ronnie Bull of Baylor, by the Chicago Bears of the NFL and Dallas Texans of AFL and fullback Earl Grosse of LSU's Orange Bowl bound team, the top choice of Green Bay of the NFL and the second choice of the Houston Oilers of the AFL.

The game again will be telecast by the National Broadcasting Company. A sellout crowd of 40,600 is indicated.

Paret's welterweight title will not be at stake. As far as the Nevada State Athletic Commission is concerned, and apparently the NBA as well, Paret, 24, will reign over both the divisions if he beats Fullmer.

Too long have we thought of The Way of the Cross as the "sad way." There may be sad moments along every noble path, but not all great ways are sad ways. The path of motherhood may have sad turns but it is a satisfying path. The path of education climbs some difficult and steep places but it is a thrilling way. Isaiah talked about the highway of God, where faithful servants passed on good errands. The way of the Cross is the way one takes when he serves God. It is not the "Sad Way" but rather the "Glad Way." Jesus came by way of the Cross, and the Book of Books on which the cross is planted, tells us to "take up our cross and follow." Whether atop the church steeple or on the highest mountain, it is The Glad Way. Heaven and God are at the end of that way. It is today aglow with the light of forgiving grace. It challenges the weak to walk by faith and offers pardon to those who fall at its foot. It is where Jesus prayed, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." It is The Glad Way.
